Following arrest for spousal abuse, West Sac man believed to have shot girlfriend, five-year old

By Steve Marschke
News-Ledger Editor

A West Sacramento man arrested last week for beating his live-in girlfriend and threatening to kill her if she called police this week shot the woman, her five-year old daughter and himself. The five-year old remained in critical condition as of Monday afternoon with a wound to the head; both the suspect and his girlfriend are dead.

According to West Sacramento police records, Kao Orn Saetern, a 30-year old Oakmont Way resident, was arrested June 4 for forcing his girlfriend into their apartment, punching her in the head repeatedly, and telling her he would kill her if she had him arrested. The pair had been living together for a year.

"He was booked into Yolo County Jail for spousal abuse and making terrorist threats," said Lt. David Farmer of the West Sacramento Police Dept. "He was released by the court on his own recognizance on the 9th."

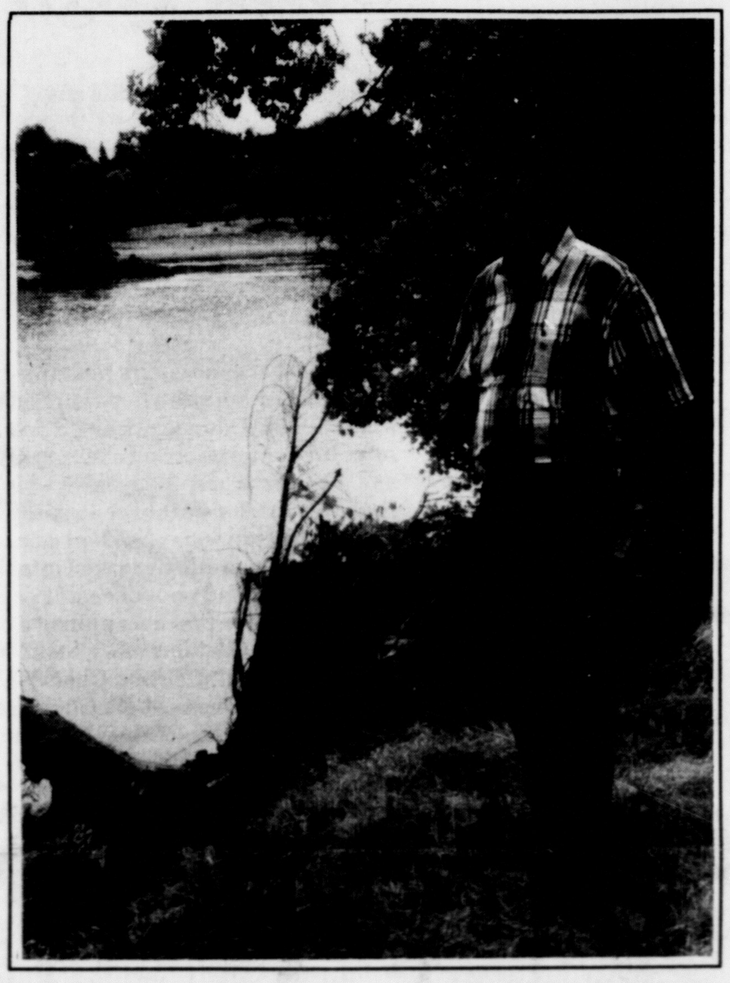

Saetern later joined his girlfriend, 21-year old Yian Saechao, in San Pablo at her family's home. San Pablo Police informed West Sacramento authorities that Saetern apparently shot Saechao, their daughter and himself on June 11.

Farmer said he was not aware if there had been a restraining order prohibiting Saetern from contacting Saechao at the time of the shooting.

"Normally, when a suspect in this kind of case is released on his own recognizance, the judge gives a standing order not to have any contact with the victim."

Governor's Mansion West?

Local officials wonder if West Sac might have a chance to compete for First Residence

News-Ledger Editor

A state commission is currently examining potential sites for an official Governor's Residence – and is concentrating on urban downtown sites near the Capitol.

That's O.K. with Yolo County Supervisor Mike McGowan. But if the state finds it has to widen its search to order to find a good, economically feasible site, McGowan would like to see West Sacramento have a chance to compete for that plumb. Specifically, he is among several local leaders who see great potential in the idea of a "compound" for the governor as part of a 43-acre property now owned by the city just across from Discovery Park.

"It's one of the finest pieces of real estate left on the river," said McGowan. "You could have a residence, an entertainment center, a helipad – the President of the United States could fly in by helicopter."

McGowan said he supports the state commission's effort to put the residence downtown. Currently, sites outside of the city of Sacramento aren't under consideration. But McGowan thinks the five-minute drive from the city's riverfront property to the Capitol means that, if the search area widens, sites in West Sacramento should be considered "according to their merits."

> 'The last time I looked, West Sacramento was in the State of California.'
> MIKE McGOWAN

Right now, that isn't possible – the commission's charge mandates that the residence stay in Sacramento, and some state officials say that is how it should be.

"They say it should go in Sacramento because it is the state capitol," he said. "But the last time I looked, West Sacramento was in the state of California."

West Sacramento mayor Christopher Cabaldon said he didn't have a view on the issue at this time, since the state search is focused narrowly around the Capitol building. He declined to speculate on whether West Sacramento ought to be considered if the search area were broadened.

McGowan added that it could be several years before any search is finalized.

ABOUT TOWN

By Daryl Fisher
Features Editor

Longtime West Sacramento resident Art Chapo was born in a back bedroom in his parents' house on 13th Street in 1925.

"My mother and father were from Hungary," remembered Art, "and my father was an electrical welder who moved the family from the Bay Area to West Sacramento after he got lead poisoning from cutting up old World War I battle ships. One of my earliest memories of West Sacramento is that it was actually called Westgate by the railroad people and that it had a population of about 45 people. Where we were at on 13th Street, between what is now Jefferson and Park Boulevards, there wasn't really much around us but grazing cows and horses. West Sacramento back then reminded my parents a lot of where they had come from in Hungary and that is one of the major reasons they decided to settle down here."

ART and DEON CHAPO

When Art was young he attended local schools, including Westacres School (which only had two classrooms at the time), Washington School (where he went to 6th, 7th and 8th grades) and then like all West Sacramento teenagers of that era, he went to high school in Wood-

School district defends 'free speech' of employee at board meeting

By Steve Marschke
News-Ledger Editor

A contentious school board meeting last week included a question from one board member about why the district had written a letter apparently trying to shield a public speaker from legal trouble.

At a May board meeting, school employee Cherry Carroll had addressed the board as a member of the public, roundly criticizing the job performance of fellow employee Kim Gibson. Gibson was the subject of termination proceedings and a criminal accusation by the district, and flyers from the employees' union claimed injustice and rallied to her cause.

After Carroll had applauded the board for disciplining Gibson, Gibson's own attorney took the podium and pointedly warned Carroll that she may have slandered Gibson.

In a May 31 letter, the school district's attorney followed up that exchange with a letter to Gibson's attorney, Richard Burton.

"You directed a threat at Ms. Carroll after she expressed an opinion which is different from your own, and that of the author of the publicly-circulated flyer which made your client's cause a public issue," said the letter from WUSD lawyer Mark R. Bresee to Gibson's lawyer. "Your threat amounted to a wholly illogical implication that when a person makes her work performance a public issue, invites people to come to a public entity governing board to support her, and has people speak on behalf of her and her work performance, she can obtain monetary damages from an individual who expresses a contrary point of view in the same public forum."

Last Thursday, board member Irene Eklund questioned the propriety of this letter.

"The question I asked (assistant superintendent) David Kopperud was why we were paying our legal counsel to give a legal opinion and protecting a member of the classified union who was speaking as a member of the community," she said.

Kopperud told the News-Ledger that he felt the district had an interest in protecting Carroll's comments, although neither Carroll nor the district had been sued yet because of them.

"The letter our attorney chose to write does definitely protect Cherry Carooll's free speech rights," he explained. "She was speaking as a member of the public. But if you sue a district employee, you're probably going to sue the district, too. If I were in the news business, I would be interested in the fact that someone was speaking at a public meeting and being told they didn't have the right to speak on that subject. Most news people would be of the opinion that free speech rights are important."

Kopperud added that the district's administration didn't play a role in sponsoring Carroll's comments.

"I was shocked when she got up to speak," he said. "I wouldn't have dreamed that anyone would have that kind of courage."

In other district news:

- A proposal to reduce the amount of WUSD's legal services being handled by Parham & Rajcic, and possibly bring in a different firm, will return for discussion at the board's meeting on June 22.
- A last-minute agenda item on Thursday, termed an "emergency" and voted on without public notice, may have broken the state's open meeting laws, but a WUSD manager told the News-Ledger Monday that the item will be brought back at the next meeting for another vote. A second vote would likely negate any legal problem with the first vote.

The item was a simple acceptance of a $26,000 donation from the Southport Elementary School parent teacher association, for use in helping to fund playground equipment at the school. Accepting the donation allowed the district to go ahead with the equipment purchase.

The district needed to hurry to accept the money in order to have the equipment installed by the Fall, said Asst. Superintendent Kopperud. But the item wasn't processed in time for the board's Thursday agenda.

"The decision was made to go forward with it, because if we didn't make an immediate decision, the playground equipment wouldn't be ready at the start of the school year," he said. "Most of the board decided it was enough of an emergency not to wait. It's not just an inconvenience for the kids – it could be a danger if it's not completed."

Superintendent Kelleher opined that the issue fit the law's definition of an emergency, although that interpretation appears incorrect. The board could have scheduled a special meeting to deal with the vote, but – with Pat Flint voting "no," Ed Hocking absent and Irene Eklund expressing reservations – a 3-1 vote was made to proceed.

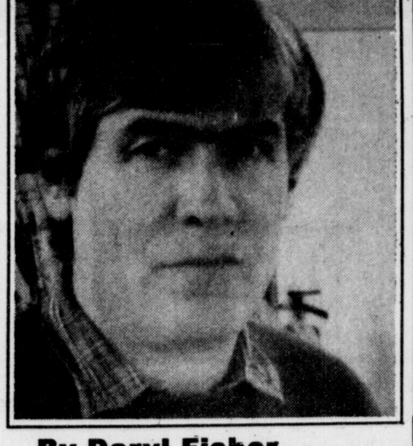

Kelleher hasn't returned calls from the News-Ledger in recent weeks.

The alternative to the vote, said Kopperud, was to "have to wait until the next meeting (in two weeks). You have to take into mind that board members are extremely busy people. It was just the acceptance of a donation needed to fund an order for playground equipment. It seems with all these factors in line you get to the point of being almost unreasonable if you say that because the donation was a little bit late, you're going to delay action."

Kelly Porterfield of the district's Maintenance, Operations and Transportation division said Monday that he understood that the issue would come back to the school board for a duplicate vote at the board's next meeting.

Why is it so hard to tell Dad we love him?

My Back Pages

By Daryl Fisher

Editor's note: With Father's Day just around the corner, Daryl is re-running the following column, which first appeared in the News-Ledger in the summer of 1995.

I wonder why it is that so many of us have such great difficulty telling those closest to us that we love them? And why is it that fathers and sons seem to run into this particular problem with more regularity than just about anyone else?

With Father's Day just around the corner, I was talking to a friend last night about these and other important questions and he happened to mention that he had what he considered to be a pretty typical relationship with his father.

"We talk about the weather, fishing, how the Giants are doing, stuff like that," he said.

"Nothing more serious?" I asked.

"Naw," he answered. "The last time I had a real deep talk with my dad I was a teenager and he was trying to explain the birds and the bees to me. That conversation went so bad we both more or less agreed not to talk about anything too serious ever again."

The next morning, I received a telephone call from my friend and he said, "Daryl, I think I gotta solution to your problem."

"What problem?" I asked, not exactly sure what he was talking about.

"You know, the one you have with your dad."

"But I don't have a problem with my dad," I assured my friend. "It's just that I wish we...."

"Look," he interrupted, "I tell you what, this year, instead of sending your dad another one of those Father's Day cards that your wife picks out for him, why don't you get brave and tell him you love him, and do it in writing, you know, in that newspaper column you write."

"Are you kidding?" I asked. "My father would die if I did that. I would die if I did that."

"I'll tell you what," he said, "if you fess up to the way you feel about your dad, come Father's Day, I'll call mine and do the same thing."

"Oh no you won't!" I said. "I know you better than that. Either you or your dad are going to have to be at death's door before one of you even lets on that you even like each other."

There was a lengthy pause, then a deep, throaty laugh. "You're right," finally said my friend, "but I bet I've talked you into writing that column, haven't I?"

My father is retired now, but for almost 40 years he worked at the old Southern Pacific Railroad shops in downtown Sacramento. As a kid, I was never really exactly sure what he did there, but it had something to do with fixing big train locomotives, and I was pretty sure it was probably one of the best jobs in the whole world.

He would leave for work a lot earlier than I left for school, and he came home late in the afternoon, tired and not very talkative. He'd eat dinner, usually watch one TV show (Bonanza, Sergeant Bilko, and the Jackie Gleason and Ed Sullivan shows were among his favorites) and then go to bed early because he had to be up at the crack of dawn to go back to work again. His job was important to him and he rarely missed a day's work, maybe seven or eight in all those 40 years.

The days fathers and sons spend together have a tendency to blend into each other, but there are always a few moments which stand out. Like the time he took me to see the Sacramento Solons play the Portland Beavers at old Edmonds Field, which is now nothing more than a chain store parking lot. Although those two teams and the field of dreams they played on no longer exist, to this day, I have never seen a more thrilling baseball game. It was a masterful pitchers' duel, with neither team able to score a run until Harry Bright (my favorite player) finally hit a long home run over the left field fence with two men out in the bottom of the 12th inning to win the game for the Solons.

My father isn't a big baseball fan and I'm sure he had taken me to the game more as a favor to me than anything else. As he and I and a handful of loyal Solon fans filed out of the stadium, I asked him if he had ever seen such an exciting game.

"I'm glad you enjoyed it," he said, yawning because he was up way past his bedtime, "but exciting? We sat there for five hours and they scored one damn run. Now what the hell is exciting about that?"

So, like most fathers and sons, my dad and I haven't spent all of our days together on the same page, but he's always been there when I needed him, made sure I had everything the other kids had, and hugged me tighter than anyone else when I left for Vietnam.

So, Happy Father's Day, Dad! I love you, and I just wanted to mention it, "in the living years".

Seven from West Sac among Delta High award winners

By Jeanette Keith
News-Ledger* Correspondent

All day, rain had threatened the ceremony for Delta High School's Class of 2000 who graduated Thursday, June 8th. Held on the football field of this tiny farm community school, as the graduates filed onto the stage, the dark clouds vanished and a flock of white doves were released into the brilliant blue sky above the stage.

The bleachers and chairs were filled and another two or three hundred family members and well wishers stood during the two hour ceremony. After the speeches of Salutatorian Latishia Welch and Valedictorian Mary Ellen Hudson, Delta High's counselor Carol Lee took the stage for the awards recognition. As she began reading the names and awards, she looked into the sky above the bleachers and announced, "I've just been upstaged." A plane flew over pulling a banner which read, "Congratulations Mary Ellen. We love you."

Chelsea Aiello, Brian Cheechov, Elizabeth Ercila, Chad Ericson, Cole Gould, Mars Hansen and Tommy Martin of West Sacramento counted for seven of the 66 graduates whose names were called by Carol Lee as having won an award or scholarship. All seven plan to attend college in the fall.

Chad Ericson, Cole Gould, Mars Hansen and Tommy Martin were presented with the Presidential Education Most Improved Grade Point Average Award.

Brian Cheechov was awarded the Delta Agriculture Education Scholarship and the Presidential Education Most Improved Grade Point Average Award.

Chelsea Aiello was presented with the National Leadership Merit Award and the Principals American Citizenship Award.

Elizabeth Ericilla earned the Principals American Citizenship Award, the Year Book 2000 Award, the Clarksburg Fireman's Association Scholarship, the Ada Barry Memorial Scholarship and the Mason's Speech Contest Scholarship.

Carol Lee, the counselor who had worked with and for these young adults for four years, stood proud as she announced "All totaled, the 66 students in Delta High School's Class of 2000 accumulated $237,508 in scholarships."

Mixed-use project for former Salud site draws city's attention

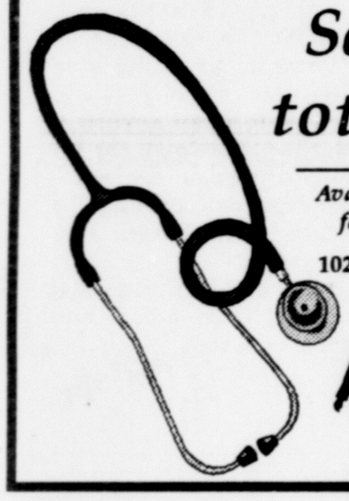

A city selection committee favors a proposal by Marchbrook Building Company (a subsidiary of Grupe Homes, Inc.), for redevelopment of a publicly owned parcel bounded by 3rd, 4th, B and C Streets in West Sacramento's "Washington" neighborhood.

The proposal calls for 47 attached row homes, nine live-work loft units and a 4,000 square foot commercial space on the northwest corner of 3rd and C streets. Home prices are expected to range from $125,000 to $144,000. The retail space is designed to house a restaurant, café or "small neighborhood retail user" and would have two levels of owner-occupied housing overhead.

The Marchbrook proposal is one of four submitted to the city in response to a "request for proposals" on what to do with the former Salud Clinic site.

It will be discussed by the city council at tonight's 7 p.m. meeting.

Sports Insider

By Richard Novoa

The River Cats (39-26) winning streak is at 10 games and counting. The Cats closed out their eight-game home stand in great fashion. The Cats swept Calgary in four and with Monday night's 5-4 come from behind victory the Gatos concluded a four game sweep of the Edmonton Trappers. The River Cats are now tied for first in the Southern Division with the Las Vegas Stars (Padres Triple-A team). The Cats will be on the road for eight games until June 22nd when the Stars come out to Raley Field. The Cats will play four games in Tucson and then head to New Orleans to tangle with the Zephyrs in a four game series starting on Saturday, June 17th.

The retirement of Steve Young didn't shock the 49ers but trying to replace the 15-year veteran is going to be difficult to say the least. Young and Montana spoiled the 49ers fans for the past 20 years with their great plays and love for the game. Young's retirement will free up about $2 million in salary cap money to sign couple of players to rebuild this franchise. The 49ers are handing the QB job to Jeff Garcia and signing Rick Mirer to free agent contract. The Niners also have two rookie quarterbacks they drafted already in camp. The good news is that Jerry Rice restructured is contract and will finish his career as a San Francisco 49er.

The Lakers lead the NBA Championship series 2-1 with game 4 set for Wednesday (6 p.m.) in Indiana. The Pacers will need to win the next two games to even have a pray of stopping the Shaq and Kobe show in Hollywood. Kobe, who sat out game three with a sprained ankle, will return for game 4. It's Miller time in Indiana!

In the world of soccer, the U.S.A. men's team beat Mexico 3-0 in New York to win the U.S. Cup. The Mexican national team violated their contract by not bringing their top players to the tournament and will forfeit their share of the tournament proceeds. The European Championships are in full force as 16 teams began play in Belgium this weekend in the Euro Cup 2000. The tournament favorites are Italy, France, and Holland.

This is a big weekend in boxing with Saturday's Pay-per-View Champion bouts at the Staple Center in Los Angeles. Oscar De La Hoya and Shane Mosley will tangle and also Sacramento's Champion Diego Corrales (31-0) faces Nigerian Justin Juuko (34-3-1) in separate 10-round bouts. Oscar will win by going the distance with Mosley while Sacramento's Corrales stops his opponent in seven rounds!

West Sacramento could end up with two World Boxing Champions in Willie Jorrin and Juan Lazcano. Willie won his bout last Friday at the Feather Falls Casino in Oroville and continues his quest for the WBC title. The date and contracts have not been signed but Jorrin received a letter from the WBC to fight England's Michael Brodie in September. Another local boxer, Juan Lazcano (22-2-1,16KO's), will be fighting Wilfredo Vasquez (52-8-3, 38 KO's) in a 12-round bout for the North American Boxing Federation lightweight title in Las Vegas. The championship bout will be televised on Showtime Friday night (7 p.m.).

See ya next week!!

"West Sacramento was a great place to grow up," said Art. "I had some wonderful friends, most of whose parents had come to California to get away from the Dust Bowl, and we would carve out our own playing fields and play sandlot baseball for hours at a time. I still have a bad leg from doing the splits in one of our football games, but it really was a wonderful time and place to be young."

After high school, Art worked for a few months at the Southern Pacific railroad and then in November of 1943, he went into the Air Force. He received extensive training as a B17 and B29 aircraft mechanic in Colorado, Utah, Nebraska and Texas before going overseas in late 1944.

"Just before we had to get on our troop ship in Seattle," recalled Art, "I got into a big poker game with a bunch of NCO's and ended up winning $65, which was big money for a PFC back then. It was a pretty rough ride to Pearl Harbor, though, and just about everyone on the ship got sick. Then they sent me to Tinian island, which at the time was the world's largest air base. It's also where the aircraft that carried the atomic bombs which finally ended the war were stationed. There were four runways and five bomber groups on North Field on that little island and I was always kept plenty busy."

After the war, Art returned to West Sacramento, went back to work for the railroad for a short time and then caught on with the telephone company.

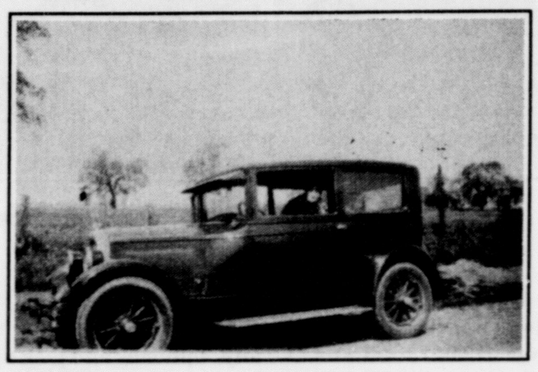

"I ended up working for the telephone company for almost 38 years," said Art, "and I did a little bit of everything, including splicing, installation and repair work. I traveled up and down the state and that is how I met my wife. While I was down in Fresno County, I went to this little social gathering under a huge fig tree and there was Deon. Bells went off and I knew right away that I wanted to marry her. She was definitely the best looking school teacher I had ever seen!"

"Art was very nice and he also had a great sense of humor," remembered Deon with a smile, "and I liked him right away, too."

After Art and Deon were married, Deon continued her teaching career in West Sacramento, where she taught for 25 years, including 15 years at Alyce Norman Elementary School and 7 years at Westfield Village Elementary School. They also had two sons, Mark, who currently works for the State of California in data analysis, and Craig, who passed away in a tragic automobile accident in 1983 at the age of 27.

Art has been extremely active in community volunteer work and he has been the president of the West Sacramento Little League, spent 20 years working with the Sea Scouts, and he has also been a wood shop volunteer at River City High School since the early 80s.

"When I first came to River City High School," said Spencer Yarwood, who currently teaches wood shop at the high school, "Art was the one I turned to to help me with just about everything. I learned an awful lot from him and there have been countless students who have gone through this class who have really benefited from having Art around to help them, too. Schools everywhere would be a lot better off if they had more volunteers like Art."

ART CHAPO's mother, circa 1926, parked on what is now 13th St. near West Capitol Ave.

"I've known Art for 25 years," said West Sacramento businessman Bill Ramos, "and if you give him a piece of wood, he can do just about anything with it. He's very talented in that area and he's got a little shop in our work yard where he's turned out some really fine wood work. He's also been very involved with the youth of our community and he's sent some fine young men over to me for jobs. I've currently got three of them on the payroll and they're all doing really well. Art's just one heck of a nice guy and West Sacramento is definitely better off because he lives here."

"My wife, Sharon, and I are blessed to have neighbors like Art and Deon Chapo," said John Curtis, who has lived across the street from Art and Deon for 22 years. "Art's sense of humor and practical jokes keep both Sharon and me on our toes and Deon's always-happy disposition keeps us up-beat. Their endless energy is a goal for all to emulate and Art is the only retired person we know who is never home and always going from one project to another."

When Art isn't busy "making sawdust", as he calls it, he and Deon enjoy traveling and among other places, they've been to Europe three times. They attend annual reunions with the families of the men who served with Art in World War II and that has also taken them to St. Louis, Las Vegas, San Diego, Boston and Washington, D.C.

"West Sacramento has changed an awful lot since the days when it had a fire department but no fire engine and my dad was considered to be doing really well because he was making a dollar a day" said Art, "but one thing has remained the same; the people here are still wonderful and there's nowhere I'd rather be."

Legion ball at Raley Field

From West Sacramento American Legion Baseball

The West Sacramento American Legion baseball team will host the Folsom American Legion team on Saturday, June 17th for a double- header beginning at 10 a.m.. Because of the hard work of West Sacramento City councilman Bill Kristoff and executives of the River City Baseball Association, both games will be played at brand new Raley Field, the home of the Sacramento River Cats.

Admission is free and there will be no concessions open. Officials of the West Sacramento American Legion are hoping for a large turnout and asking that fans treat the stadium with respect by not leaving any trash behind. This will help make it possible for future American Legion teams to use beautiful Raley Field for their games.

Telephone repair with experience

(Here is the latest in the News-Ledger's series of profiles with its advertisers. We hope you enjoy this chance to meet them. – Editor)

By Steve Marschke

JACK SILVEIRA of 'Jack's Telephone Repair,' with his classic BSA motorcycle

The telephone industry is fraught with change, and West Sacramento's Jack Silveira has seen many of them. Retired from 30 years with Pacific Bell, Silveira still does house calls on phone equipment – setting up phone lines and repairing old phone instruments.

"It started when I was living in Petaluma," he relates. "I wanted to go to work for the telephone company and happened to be in San Francisco, so I applied. They didn't have the job I wanted, so I started as a truck driver. In 1953, I moved to Sacramento and worked for Pac Bell inside the switch room, outside telephone repair and frame work (wiring connections)."

The switch room is one example of how technology has changed over the years.

"Our office was one floor. It was a 60 foot by 100 foot room, and then they took the same thing and put it into a room about 20 by 20 with modern miniaturization."

"I worked there quite awhile," he adds of Pac Bell, "and retired in 1982 after 30 years. All that time, I worked in Carmichael, Folsom, El Dorado Hills, West Sacramento, Oak Park, Berkeley, Danville and other places."

When the phone company "divested" in 1984 – allowing competition in phone repair services, Silveira opened up Jack's Telephone Repair.

"Anybody could go into the telephone repair business then," he said. "I started by going to the flea market on Folsom Blvd. on weekends and renting a table. People who wanted a telephone fixed would leave it and come back the next week and it would be fixed for them. But when it rained, people didn't come in, and I didn't make any money, but I still had to pay for the table. I said, 'forget that!'"

So Silveira put out a series of yellow page ads and an ad in the News-Ledger that has been in these pages for years. He opened up his own shop. One specialty is the repair of old – often classic – telephone instruments, including rotary phones and old "Bakelite" models.

These, he says, can work virtually forever.

"You can go through two or three of the new electric phones in a year," he said. "The old mechanical ones last forever. If you drop the new type, usually you break the card inside."

Where does he see the future of phones?

"In 15 or 20 years, you won't have any wires," Silveira predicted. "Your phone will be on your wrist. Cellular phones will probably turn into business phones and pick up two or three lines."

Silveira lives alone but has one daughter in West Sacramento and another in Ohio. He has five grandchildren and one great-grandchild.

An Air Force veteran, he was sent to the Aleutian Islands in the World War II era, leaving in 1946. He found that island chain, located west of Alaska, quite cold.

"I drove a truck for the mess hall, picked up rations and ran a gas station up there," he said. "The island was called Amchitka. It was a mile wide and 18 miles long. Three or four of us built a motorcycle up there."

Silveira still rides motorbikes. He has a classic 1963 BSA and a 1982 Triumph electric start.

"Sometimes I'll take off from here and sometimes I'll trailer to Petaluma and ride to Point Reyes, Dillon Beach or the Russian River. I ride by myself and like to go 50 to 60 miles per hour, tops. I'm not a joy rider. I belonged to a club, but every time we went on a ride it was like a race. I'm not in a hurry. One day, I put on 450 miles to Willits and back."

Retirement? Maybe in a year or two, he said.

And while that might mean hanging up the phone repair tools, it won't mean goodbye to his bikes.

"I;m going to visit some people," he said. "I'm going to take my Cadillac sedan and put a trailer hitch on it and take my bikes and visit some folks I know in New Mexico and Arizona.

Jack's Telephone Repair can be reached at 371-5950. His ad generally appears on page two of the News-Ledger.

OPINION

News-Ledger Editorial:

Is this a 'new era'? If not, at least it feels like one

The News-Ledger has had conversations with several different long-time residents recently, with each of these talks proceeding along the same theme:

Things are different in West Sacramento following construction of Raley Field. For this city, pretty much anything seems possible now.

True, the city got a boost from construction of the landmark Money Store building near the Tower Bridge. That building is now featured almost nightly on Sacramento-area newscasts and is pictured in countless local publications. But the ballpark is different.

The precise difference is a bit hard to pin down. It seems to have something to do with the fact that the ballpark was built in West Sacramento partly with the backing of Sacramento County (a tacit recognition of this city's place in the region). It also seems connected to the fact that the stadium happened despite the opposition of the City of Sacramento's last administration, led by the late and formidable Mayor Serna. The difference also seems reflective of the beauty of the ballpark itself, and of the way it shows off the area on both sides of the Sacramento River. And it has quite a bit to do with the prominence brought to West Sacramento by a high-level sports franchise; both the people and media are taking an interest in the River Cats in a way few can become excited about the loan company's headquarters.

The stadium creates a shared community experience for the Sacramento region, and West Sacramento plays proud host.

All this brings a tremendous load of self-esteem to West Sacramento, along with a swelling feeling that few goals are now too high for this town.

One small point missed by many in the public and the media:

Raley Field is not, technically, just another stadium named after a corporation. It is not "Raley's/Bel Air Field," or even "Raley's Field." Actually, it is named after Tom Raley, the founder of the supermarket chain who was also noted around here for his belief in West Sacramento and the future of its riverfront.

Even though the naming rights were purchased by the late businessman's company, this is a small but important distinction.

A meeting scheduled for Monday by the Washington Unified School District for its bond oversight committee was announced in advance and scheduled to include a Brown Act discussion. Although it took too long to get to this point, this is a good step.

WUSD is right to make sure this committee adheres with state open meeting law – an adherence that is not as difficult as it sometimes looks.

And lastly:

The muddy waters of the school district continue to swirl with ironies.

Earlier this year, the district had an illegal policy prohibiting members of the public from criticizing district employees when addressing the school board. (Under fire, the district dropped the policy.)

This month, the district used its own taxpayer-funded legal services to protect an employee who, speaking purely as a member of the public, criticized a fellow employee quite roundly during her comments to the school board. Could this sudden zeal for free speech have anything to do with the fact that the speaker's criticisms supported the WUSD administration?

Letters to the Editor

Is our city only for the developers?

I'm starting to understand the citizen apathy here in West Sac. Your article on June 7 about Beazer development being allowed to chop down a giant cottonwood in spite of our tree-cutting ordinance opened my eyes to why my neighbors seem so apathetic, even angry, at local politics. Why should we participate in future planning when existing ordinances and plans aren't enforced or are overridden by City Staff? If a landowner can so easily chop down a protected tree to get one more lot then how can we believe the City will enforce any aspects of the General Plan or Framework Plans?

Did the developer not know a giant tree was there when he bought the land? Or did he already know he'd get the City's permission to ignore the tree preservation ordinance in order to chop it down! These matchbox, almost pre-fab type homes probably won't be standing in 10 years, yet they kill a 50-plus year old tree, with our city's parks and community services director's blessing.

I'm beginning to feel the City pretends to care about citizen involvement, but they'll do whatever it takes just to please developers, who swoop thru our town, make their money and run, before their houses fall down! Meanwhile, we property owners/taxpayers who've invested our hopes and dreams, as well as time, energy and money to support our community are ignored.

Now I'm learning why so many people have given up! I still have some energy left to fight and plan to do so at the public hearing on General Plan Update (at City Council meeting 6/14) but am getting discouraged and certainly now understand why others have stopped even trying to "fight city hall".

Common questions & answers from the Veterans Administration

The following are typical questions and answers that are handled daily by counselors from the Department of Veterans Affairs. Full information is available at any VA office.

Question: My father was buried in a private cemetery. Is he still eligible for a VA headstone? Is there any charge?

Answer: To be eligible for a VA headstone or marker, a veteran must be discharged from active duty under what's technically known as "conditions other than dishonorable." VA will provide a flat marker or an upright headstone, regardless of the cemetery. It is inscribed and shipped at government expense. For burials in private cemeteries, the survivors must pay the cost of placing the headstone or marker.

Question: I'm a Vietnam veteran. How can I know if I was exposed to Agent Orange?

Answer: For purposes of establishing a legal right to VA disability compensation and VA health care, VA assumes that everyone in Vietnam was exposed to Agent Orange. A veteran had to have served in Vietnam, not elsewhere in Southeast Asia, from January 9, 1962 through May 7, 1975. This includes people who served off shore and in assignments elsewhere that involved visiting Vietnam.

Question: I was a POW during World War II. How do I get the new POW medal?

Answer: The military issues medals, not the VA. If you were in the Navy, Marine Corps or Coast Guard, write to: US Navy Liaison Office, National Personnel Records Center, Room 3475, 9000 Paige Blvd, St Louis, MO 63132. If you were in the Army, write to Army Reserve Personnel Center, Attn: ARPC-VSE, National Personnel Records Center, 9700 Paige Blvd, St. Louis, MO 63132. If you were in the Air Force, write to National Personnel Records Center (Military Personnel Records) at the same address.

If possible, include a copy of your discharge papers, dates of service, service number or Social Security number and other pertinent information. Survivors can receive the POW Medal on behalf of veterans who died before receiving it.

Cahill asks council to consider political reform

City Council member Jim Cahill will ask the council tonight to consider a pair of new campaign reform ideas.

The first would be a requirement of anybody who is a party to a city council or planning commission issue, requiring them to disclose donations to councilmen or commissioners if the donations total $250 or more in the past year. Likewise, the council members and commission members would have an obligation to disclose donations from those doing business with their agencies.

The second would be a requirement for the council and planning commission to instruct their members to publicly report lobbying contacts involving city business to help keep the public's business "in the full light of day."

If Cahill's colleagues agree to consider the proposals, they will be placed on a future city council agenda for discussion.

PORT from page one

Sulpizio, who has been talking to Westrec for over a year. During that time, Westrec's plans have expanded. Original plans called for a simple facility to store small boats in a "dry stack" manner indoors. Negotiations have led to a concept plan for a larger and more varied development project.

"The concept plan calls for inside boat storage, retail, launch ramps, and probably some office commercial," said Sulpizio. It also includes a bed and breakfast facility and residential housing in line with the city's Southport Framework Plan ideas for the area.

The acreage is located close to the now-under-construction Beazer Homes development, south of the barge canal and east of Jefferson Blvd. Westrec Marina is based in Southern California and has marina facilities elsewhere in the state.

Building a marina at the Port's site probably require a conditional use permit from the city, said Sulpizio, and Westrec and the Port are negotiating a development agreement on how best to proceed.

"The idea here is to make the land available for development, and the Port owns the land," said Sulpizio. "We'll either have to lease the land to Westrec or jointly develop it or possibly sell all or a portion of it to Westrec."

On Monday, the port's governing board voted to send the proposed development agreement to legal counsel. The port will revisit the agreement at its July 10 meeting.

GSMS gets $130,000 grant

By Daryl Fisher
Features Editor

Golden State Middle School principal Ken Whittemore recently announced that Golden State has been awarded a three-year $130,000 State of California education grant which will allow West Sacramento's Washington Unified School District's only middle school to provide an after school program for its many students.

"The grant will add up to approximately $400,000 over the next three years," explained Whittemore, "and I can't tell you how excited I am that we received it. We were one of only three schools in the Sacramento region to be awarded one, and also one of only 89 schools in the whole state to get one."

Whittemore was especially pleased with the way his whole staff got behind the idea of creating an after school program.

"Our teachers banded together and came up with a really great proposal," said Whittemore, "and Cherry Carroll, Stephanie Schuering, Mary Cook and Janice Harris did a wonderful job of writing the grant. Because of the way everyone pitched in, starting next year our students will be able to attend an on-campus after school program which will give them access to counseling, tutoring, study habits and testing help, career development, a health faire, bicycle safety classes, field trips to learn about college, and the list goes on and on. Plus the grant will make it possible to provide Monday through Friday transportation for students who attend the after school program and I think that will also help add to its popularity."

Golden State Middle School applied for the same grant last year but was not awarded one.

"We learned from our mistakes," said Whittemore, "and I think that is a good sign of more good things to come for Golden State Middle School in the future. This was a very competitive grant and to have been awarded one is really special. A quality after school program is something our students really need and I want to express my deep appreciation to everyone who helped make it possible."

City Council okays 6th Street fence

By Steve Marschke
News-Ledger Editor

The city council of West Sacramento last week voted to "abandon" part of 6th St. near the railroad tracks, privatizing the road and retroactively legalizing a fence blocking access by pedestrians trespassing across the railroad tracks and nearby private property.

The fence, built by Tim Conners of Sun Cal Construction, "was a bad solution to a worse problem," said Mayor Christopher Cabaldon. "I really object to the way it was done. I don't think people ought to take any of the laws into their own hands, whether it's vigilante police action or vigilante public works action, which this was."

Conners had complained that hundreds of people were cutting across the railroad tracks and his property daily before he erected the fence.

Cabaldon said that, despite his problems with the fence, the fence did provide a "real solution" to the problem and city staff had opinionated that the city would never have a need for public access to the street again.

Conners defended putting up the fence without permission.

"If I did it their way, we'd still be talking about it," he said. "It would have never happened. They don't have to live here and I do."

In other council business, a first-time-locally resolution to acknowledge Gay Pride day in Yolo County was approved. Council member Mark Montemayor abstained.

The bidding:

Opening lead — king of spades.

The observation that life isn't always fair can be applied to a certain type of bridge hand where overbidding pays off while sensible bidding loses out.

An example of this apparent paradox is provided by today's deal from a duplicate game. At one table, where North-South were playing ace-showing responses to a strong two-bid, South reached three no-trump as shown.

Declarer won West's king of spades with the ace and had to decide how best to utilize his one and only entry to the dummy. Quite reasonably, he led dummy's 10 of clubs and let it ride. Had the finesse succeeded, South would have had 10 tricks without the aid of a heart finesse. As it was, though, West grabbed the queen of clubs and peeled off five spades to set the contract two tricks.

Another South player, after a series of bids too gruesome to record, arrived at six no-trump. Again the king of spades was led, and again declarer took the ace.

Here, though, South had no good reason to finesse in clubs. Even if the finesse succeeded, he could not come close to making 12 tricks. So he decided to play for a combination of minor miracles as his only chance to bring in the slam.

At trick two, he led a heart to the queen. After this held, he cashed the A-K of clubs, dropping the queen. With everything going just as the doctor ordered and 12 tricks assured (assuming East had the heart king), declarer now went after a 13th trick.

He played the A-K-Q of diamonds, establishing dummy's seven, crossed to the 10 of clubs and cashed the good diamond. Then, adding insult to injury, the heart finesse was repeated, giving South all the tricks!

As we said, life — especially life at the bridge table — isn't always fair.

Books by Ralph Hollenbeck

The Official Chronology of the U.S. Navy in World War II, by Robert J. Cressman (Naval Institute Press: $45).

The Oxford Companion to the American Military History, edited by John Whiteclay Chambers II (Oxford Univ. Press: $60).

It's difficult to believe that it's been 55 years since the greatest, most extensive conflict in history was drawing to a close. Germany surrendered in May 1945, and four months later the Allies ended Japanese Far East ambitions.

Naval historian Cressman begins his chronology of the U.S. Navy's part in World War II on Sept. 1, 1939. The significance of Cressman's choice of date is that officially the United States did not enter the war until two years later, after the Japanese attacked Pearl Harbor. In reality, American sympathies, supplies and strategies were geared to war (in Europe at least) long before Dec. 7, 1941.

Cressman's text reads like a day-by-day log of naval operations globally, offering a greater feeling of immediacy than a straight history. What it definitely cries for is an index. Nevertheless, this is the record of a most dramatic era.

Rutgers University history professor Chambers' encyclopedia offers an informative overview of America's military adventures, including those we have fought with lesser distinction, direction and determination since Eisenhower's "Crusade on Europe."

Here, too, from leaders and campaigns dating from King Philip's War to Desert Storm, the Navy receives honorable mention.

Cressman's "Chronology" and Chambers' "Military History" wonderfully complement each other in a tribute to the men and actions that deserve our salute.

NEWS OF EDUCATION

Succeeding With College Admissions Essays

(NAPS)—Just how critical is the college admission essay? Many educators feel that a strong essay could elevate an applicant from the rejection or alternate list to an acceptable level, and a poor essay could cause an otherwise excellent applicant to be denied.

Some say that the essay is more than critical; it is crucial.

Fortunately, students can find help to write them online. One such online service is myEssay.com. Some tips that may give students an extra edge include:

Do strive for depth, not breadth, and convey a positive message.

Do write an essay that only you could honestly write.

Do proofread your essay several times as if someone other than you wrote it.

Don't rehash what the reader already knows about you.

Don't try to summarize your entire life's accomplishments.

Don't write anything that could be construed as embarrassing.

myEssay.com boasts a team of 10 former admissions officers from schools including Yale, Harvard and Columbia, two Rhodes scholars and professional editors.

"I spent a huge amount of time on my essay for Yale," says Vedant Mimani, co-founder and president of myEssay.com. From personal experience and conversations with Yale admissions officers, he saw the need for some type of training program and started myEssay.com two years ago.
